NEWSLETTER · SAFETY MADE SIMPLE

Is your business legally covered?

If you employ people, this applies to you.

By law, almost every employer in Ireland needs a written safety statement and risk assessments. Most small businesses don't have them, and it usually only comes up when an insurer, a client or an HSA inspector asks.

I'm Tim Gilmore. I set up WorkSafe WorkSmart to get that sorted for you quickly, in plain English, at a price small businesses can afford.

I work with shops, cafés, salons, hotels, offices, landscapers, mechanics, trades and contractors.

I bring hands-on health and safety experience from major projects all over Ireland.

How I can help

1. Ready-made document packs
   Plain-English safety statements, risk assessments and policies for your type of business, ready for you to tailor and use.

2. Low-cost monthly support
   Updated templates and help when things change or someone asks for your paperwork, with an entry tier priced for sole traders.

3. Training, coming soon
   Practical health and safety training for you and your team.

What that looks like in practice

Say you run a small landscaping business with two staff. The pack gives you a safety statement template, risk assessments for things like mowers, strimmers, lifting and working outdoors, and short policies on manual handling and first aid. Tailor them in an evening and you're covered when a client or your insurer asks.

See the packs at worksafeworksmart.ie

Or just reply to this email to join the launch list and hear first when the packs go live.

Tim Gilmore, Founder, WorkSafe WorkSmart
worksafeworksmart.ie
Call or text: 083 377 4001
Email: hello@worksafeworksmart.ie

WorkSafe WorkSmart content is general guidance written around Irish law, including the Safety, Health and Welfare at Work Act 2005, HSA guidance and, for construction work, the Safety, Health and Welfare at Work (Construction) Regulations 2013. It is not legal advice.

You're getting this because you're on this mailing list. Unsubscribe at any time.